② OREM (1985) "Nursing is deliberate action to bring about humanly desirable conditions in persons and the environment."

③ V.H (1961) "The unique function of nurses is to assist the individual, young or old, in the performance of those activities contributing to health and behavior (or personal development) that he would perform unaided if he had the necessary strength, will or knowledge. and to do this in such a way to help him to regain independence as soon as possible."
